Vintage barbie box value. Are old barbies worth money. What vintage barbies are worth money. Most valuable vintage barbies.

Collectible dolls are among the most beloved and recognizable collectibles of all. Whether you've owned or played with one, most can describe the most famous dolls, such as Barbie, Cabbage Patch Dolls, or Raggedy Ann and Andy. Like other collectibles, collectible dolls generally fall into three categories: antique, vintage, and modern. Explore the collectible doll brands and their characteristics. Antique dolls were usually made of wax, papier mâché, wood, china, bisque, or cloth. This is typically how they're usually classified. Bisque is perhaps the best-known material. It's a kind of unglazed porcelain. Its matte surface is more realistic than the shinier glazed china. These categories refer to what the doll's head was made of; the bodies were usually made of softer materials such as kid leather or cloth. Most antique dolls were made to look like adults and came with removable clothing. However, there are particular dolls made to look like children. While prices can vary based on the popularity, condition, and age of a collectible doll, there are a few popular brands to watch for when identifying an antique doll. French bébé dolls were designed after children with bisque and porcelain heads. They included elaborate outfits in luxurious silks and velvet, along with accessories stockings, purses, shoes, hats, and more. The price for French Bébe Dolls vary based on the condition and popularity but can be found on Ruby Lane for more than $4,000 depending on rarity. German "dolly-faced" dolls were produced between the 1870s and 1930s. Made of porcelain and bisque, these dolls were hand sculpted with expressionless faces. Finding an intact German "dolly-faced" doll is rare. These dolls and heads can be found between $100-$200 on the site Ruby Lane. But prices can be much higher. Some of the first talking dolls, mama dolls, were invented around 1915. These dolls combined a soft body with two innovative characteristics: a voice mechanism that said "mama" when the doll was turned and leg joints that allowed the child to "walk" the doll. These realistic dolls were the first doll craze in the United States and one of the great fads of the 1920s. Price ranges for these dolls vary, but they can be found on Ebay for under $200 depending on condition. Another fad from these early decades of the 1900s and one of the first dolls to appear in storybooks were the Raggedy Ann and Andy dolls. These dolls had a simple scarecrow look to their faces and red hair. They both had distinctive outfits tailored to the story. They were first created in 1915 and are amazingly still in production more than 80 years later. Prices vary based on condition. However, the Very Rare Knickerbocker Raggedy Ann DARK stripe legs 1960's was priced for $225 at Ruby Lane. Antique dolls, like modern dolls, were made as children's toys and so usually show at least some wear. How much depends on what the doll was made of and, of course, how carefully it was handled. Antique dolls can be found on auction websites like eBay as well as other sites specializing in antiques. Vintage collectible dolls are those produced between 1930 and roughly 1980. This category includes famous collectible dolls like: Barbie doll Chatty Cathy Strawberry Shortcake These dolls are notable because they have had a lasting impact on American culture. Both Barbie and Strawberry Shortcake have played lead roles in many movies over the past decades, as well as being featured in children's story books, clothing designs, and toys. While most of these dolls were made of composites, vinyl, or plastic, cloth was also common, particularly for dolls designed for very young children. However, the different doll types have distinctive features to look for. Additionally, collectability of the doll depends on rarity, edition, popularity, and condition. Dating back to 1959, Barbie dolls have been a hot commodity in the collectible doll world. Not only do they have limited and princess versions, but Barbies come with all different types of accessories. These plastic dolls with can have careers, sisters, and even pets. The creator Mattel offers collector's editions along with a collector's membership. Prices for collectible Barbies vary; however, the original 1959 Barbie is worth $27,450. A Barbie collector price guide can give you more info on values. Chatty Cathy came out in 1959. This collectible doll had short curly hair, freckles, blinking eyes, and talked when her string was pulled. The doll has a very child-like appearance with a fluffy dress. However, various versions were made. For example, the Twilight Zone edition The Living Doll (1963) was not only based on Chatty Cathy but used the voice of the original Chatty Cathy, June Foray. Like most collectibles, the price varies on condition. For example, a Chatty Cathy that's never been removed from the box is valued between $350 and $750 according to the Chatty Cathy Collectors Club. In 1979, the Strawberry Shortcake dolls were released, modeled after American Greetings cards. These unique dolls and accessories were food themed and had scents to match their theme. This brand grew to include other dolls like Cherry Cuddler and Huckleberry Pie. Some of these dolls have even started to come back into production. Currently, a 1980 Kenner Strawberry Shortcake Rag Doll in used condition is available for $10. However, an Strawberry Shortcake doll house went for whopping $1,200 on eBay. Madame Alexander created the first line of celebrity dolls. These included: Dale Evans Margaret O'Brien Scarlett O'Hara Shari Lewis These collectible dolls have a unique round face and wide eyes. They also feature a plastic head and come in a variety of styles. Pricing for these dolls has several variables. However, the Madame Alexander doll price guides on Doll Values included a 1947 Flower Girl for $550. Cabbage Patch Kids were a major fad in the 1980s, largely because of the wide range of variations that made each one was unique, capturing the spirit of the handmade originals, and because the dolls came with signed birth certificates. These dolls had a plastic face and cloth body. Their hair was made of yarn, and each had its own unique features. While some Cabbage Patch can be worth more than $1,000, Antique Trader notes most sell for between $10-$30. Some consider modern collectible dolls to be only the dolls made for the collectibles market, while others include any kind of doll that becomes a collectible. Many modern dolls are continuations of vintage doll lines, such as Barbie, Madame Alexander, and Strawberry Shortcake, and some, such as Ginny and Raggedy Ann and Andy, are based on antique doll lines. Check out a few different modern collectible doll lines to jump into. Bratz dolls were a modern twist on the classic Barbie. They have larger heads and huge eyes, along with glamorous features. Additionally, they come with a plethora of modern and trendy clothing. Bratz dolls can be found at local venues and specialty stores. However, collectible dolls like the MGA Bratz Big Kidz Music Stars can be found on Etsy for around $85. Marie Osmond dolls were created by Marie Osmond and debuted on OVC. This collection of dolls has cutesy features similar to antique collectible dolls. Names of these dolls include "Remember Me", "Olive May", "Adora Bell" and more. Marie Osmond dolls can be found on Judy's Dolls ranging from $50 - $160. Lee Middleton dolls are lifelike baby dolls currently sold by Madame Alexander. They can be found in clothing like jumpers, dresses, and rompers, to name a few. The true hallmark of these dolls are their life-like faces and bodies simulating the look of newborns and toddlers. Prices vary by collection, but Pansy of the 2011 Collection can be found for $160. Adora makes dolls designed for play. However, these trendy baby and toddler dolls have caught the eyes of collectors. In addition to their chubby angelic features, Adora baby dolls come in a variety of styles with fun headbands, sassy clothing, or pop culture references. Price for Adora dolls are around $100 and up. For example, Buba Bear can be found for $120 on Samantha's Collectible Dolls & Bears. American Girl dolls are historical toys that grew out of three original base models. These unique dolls each have a specific back story and characteristic features. For example, Kit lived during the Great Depression. These dolls all have unique facial expressions and designs based on their era. Their clothing and accessories are also era-specific. Some original dolls like Samantha Parkington are worth more than $1,000. Reborn dolls are the merging of art and doll collections. In these artistic creations, artists take manufactured dolls and turn them into lifelike babies. From the head to the tips of the toes, these dolls are increasingly realistic. The level of realism and price of these unique creations vary but they can be found for $100 and up from AstonDrake. However, reborn dolls on Etsy can be found for over $1,000. Dolls, like most other collectibles, need to be stored in places that keep them from extremes of heat, humidity and temperature fluctuations, and that provide them with protection from dust but sufficient air circulation. Always use acid-free materials for packing and protection and do not let metal parts touch plastic dolls. If you have a doll you need to identify, Doll Reference has an extensive guide of dolls from the 1900s through the 1970s. Doll collectors love their collections. However, knowing the hot brands of dolls can be hard to understand. Now that you have a bit of doll collection knowledge, you're more prepared for diving into this antique field. © 2022 LoveToKnow Media. All rights reserved. The original design of Strawberry Shortcake and her cat, Custard was created in 1979 by a greeting card illustrator, and characters subsequently followed. Kenner products created the first Strawberry Shortcake doll in 1979. At that time she resembled a typical rag doll, complete with freckles, a mop of red yarn hair, and a strawberry printed bonnet but the unique selling point was that, yes, she smelt of strawberries. The Strawberry Shortcake line of characters each had their own fruit or dessert-themed name with clothing to match, and they each had a dessert or fruit-named pet. Like the Strawberry Shortcake doll, all the other characters' dolls had hair scented to match their dessert theme. For example, there was Huckleberry Pie who was virtually the only boy and seemed to have been based somewhat on Huckleberry Finn. Then there was Blueberry Muffin who was Strawberry Shortcake's best friend and who had long blue plaited hair and a mouse called Cheesecake; look at her now down below! There was Apple Dumpling, the baby and Raspberry Tart who, in the television programs, was capable of the odd cutting remark. The characters lived and played in a magical world known as Strawberryland. Are you thinking of buying or selling vintage strawberry shortcake dolls or collectables? In this guide, I will teach you everything you need to know about good practices when buying or selling online in the USA plus some information about enhancing your profit. I will cover where and how to sell them for the best price. I also include a pricing guide from March 2022 eBay.com sales to assist you in this process. Value and Price Guide First Issue Dolls There were five very first issue Strawberry Shortcake dolls that were issued in 1979. There were two girls, one boy, one baby, and a villain. These first five dolls were issued with flat hands (except Purple Pie Man) and no pets (except Apple Dumplin and Purple Pie Man). The Value of the First Issue dolls is $40 dollars MIB with Strawberry being the most expensive of all of them. Thanks to The four dolls with flat hands are: Strawberry Shortcake Blueberry Muffin Apple Dumpling Huckleberry Pie The Purple Pie Man In 1980 the rest of the first issue dolls were released. These dolls had curved hands now, but still had no pets. These nine dolls were: Strawberry Shortcake Blueberry Muffin Orange Blossom Lemon Meringue Raspberry Tart Huckleberry Pie Apricot Apple Dumpling The Purple Pie Man Tea Time Turtle and Berry Bird are the only Strawberry Shortcake Pets that were made out of hard plastic. All of the other pets including Hopsalot were made out of soft plastic. In the next generation of dolls, Tea Time Turtle was made out of soft plastic, but Berry Bird was continued to be made out of hard plastic. Second Issue Dolls In 1981 Kenner started making the second issue dolls. There were five new dolls, three girls, one baby and another villain. All the dolls now had their pets. The value of these dolls is $30 MIB. The new dolls were Lime Chiffon, Cherry Cuddler, Butter Cookie, Angel Cake, and Sour Grapes In 1983 the final five of the second issue regular dolls were released. The value of these dolls is $40 MIB. These five were the international doll series. Attic Furniture Price Estimates What should you look for then considering the condition of your dolls? You should ensure there are no marks or obvious damage to the doll, hair or clothing. Clothing should be stain free and original for the doll. In order to achieve the highest value, the doll must be in its original box with any accessories (and a complete set). Some dolls are rarer than others, so keep that in mind. Vintage strawberry shortcake dolls Note you will see many items coming up on eBay from 2003 onwards, including video games, but keep your eyes on the dolls as their value keeps increasing. Here is a general price guide, dolls can be worth around $30 and up, and some rarer dolls, furniture and even houses can reach extraordinary prices! Visiting your local thrift shop regularly for vintage bargains could be a great idea if you know what to look for! For example, there are many people wishing to acquire a piece of nostalgia from the 1980s, this vintage Strawberry Shortcake Berry Happy Home doll house is worth at least $250. It is essential to get the original box and complete set to ensure the best price. According to the packaging, "This is where Strawberry Shortcake and Custard live. A 'berry' beautiful five room house with a special selection of delightful furniture." The stucco-type house features a trellis with strawberries, front porch swing, mailbox that really opens, by windows, upstairs bedroom sun deck, and even a pink skylight on the roof. Furniture and dolls not included. Rare Berrykins Dolls from the 1980s. The Berrykin dolls were released in 1985 and were the last line of Strawberry Shortcake dolls to be produced in the original series. Some of these are worth more than $200 each. You can identify them easily as they have hair bows, instead of hats, and critters instead of pets. Each Berrykin critter had a little necklace around its neck with scented solid perfume inside. The Berrykin line also featured dolls with extra long hair and fancy dresses. Instead of the classic green and white tights, the dolls have pastel rainbow-striped tights. The Berrykin line featured a new character, Banana Twirl, as well as five dolls from previous lines: Mint Tulip, Orange Blossom, Peach Blush, Plum Puddin, and Strawberry Shortcake. There was also a Berry Princess, who was a friend or guardian of the Berrykin critters. Thanks to AngelFire.com for this image See Brown Eyed Rose for more info and images on this series.
